Re: The Development of Patent Infringement Suit

As of September 11 of 2007, we, Wacom Co., Ltd., (hereinafter "WCL") informed you of the lawsuits against Hangwang Technology Co., Limited. (hereinafter "Hanwang") for infringement of our three (3) Chinese patents and six (6) U.S. patents by pen tablet products manufactured and sold by Hanwang both in China and USA and to seek remedies including injunction against Hanwang's infringement. As the development has arisen in relation to the lawsuit, we inform as follows;

1. Development:

As of December 22, 2007, Hanwang initiated lawsuit against Wacom China Corporation (located in Beijing, China; WCL's subsidiary in China) and its distributor and the individual concerned in Shijiazhuang Intermediate People's Court in Hebei Province, China for infringement of three (3) utility models.

2. Detail of the lawsuit:

Plaintiff: Hanwang Technology Co., Limited. (located in Beijing)
Defendants: Wacom China Corporation (located in Beijing; our subsidiary in China)
Shijiazhuang Sanchuan Cultural Diffusion Co., Ltd. (dealer of Wacom China Corporation)
Zhou Bingxing (lived in Shijiazhuang city)
Court: Shijiazhuang Intermediate People's Court in Hebei Province, china
Date of Filing: December 22, 2007
Remedies sought: Injunction against infringement of three (3) utility models owned by

Hanwang, publishing in the media, and compensation for economic loss arising from infringement, expenses for notarizations and attorney fee (total; approximately Japanese Yen (¥)15,000,000)

3. Future Prospect

Wacom will assert invalidation of three (3) utility models owned by Hanwang and non-infringement of Wacom new tablet products.

4. Influence to Anticipated Business performance:

We observe no financial influence on our latest consolidated business forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2008.
